CITIES reinvented

Spain is privileged to be among the countries with the great number of sites on UNESCO's World Heritage List.

The Spanish Group of World Heritage Cities began to combine their efforts in 1993 to create a nonprofit Association, with the specific objective of working together to defend the historical and cultural heritage of these cities: Alcalá de Henares, Ávila, Baeza, Cáceres, Córdoba, Cuenca, Ibiza/Eivissa, Mérida, Salamanca, San Cristóbal de La Laguna, Santiago de Compostela, Segovia, Tarragona, Toledo and Úbeda.

In view of their wide variety of historic-artistic, cultural and gastronomic attractions, World Heritage Cities stand out as unique, must-see tourist destinations.

ALCALÁ DE HENARES

Located 30 km from Madrid and 14 km from Madrid-Barajas International Airport, Alcalá de Henares – named a UNESCO

World Heritage Site in 1998 – is a modern, attractive, dynamic and cultural city. It is ideal for strolling, reflecting or simply letting yourself be swept away by the charm of its unique nooks and crannies, which take visitors on a journey back in time.

The city, whose roots go back to the Roman town of Complutum, is without doubt the cultural capital of the Madrid region. Alcalá's rich heritage evidences the enormous contribution it has made to universal culture, notably in the 16th and 17th centuries – the city's most famous son, Miguel de Cervantes, was born here in 1547.

The old medieval city of Alcalá de Henares experienced a major artistic and cultural boom following the establishment of its university by Cisneros in 1499. This earned it the nickname 'City of Knowledge', a reputation it continues to hold to this day.

Alcalá is also known as the 'City of Arts and Letters', thanks to its extensive range of top-quality cultural attractions, all topped off by superb cuisine, magnificent hotels and a wide variety of leisure activities.

The city is a member of the Madrid Spanish Platform, in turn part of the Madrid Network (www.madridnetwork.org). This cluster draws together regional and local institutions and the academic community in pursuit of several common goals: to position the Madrid region as an economic power for Spanish-related industries, to promote tourism and to lead the production of Spanish language teaching materials and the dissemination of Spanish.

With the support of the Madrid Network and the initiative of the Henares Entrepreneurs Association, the City Council of Alcalá and the University of Alcalá, Spanish language learning has become the linchpin of a thriving new business niche.

Ávila is a city in which past and present come together. Its heritage: the old city walls, its temples, palaces, convents, etc. as well as its legacy as a medieval melting pot of three cultures – Islamic, Jewish and Christian – and its gastronomy and traditions, offer visitors a rich cultural experience, whether they have come to the city as tourists, to learn Spanish or for an extended stay.

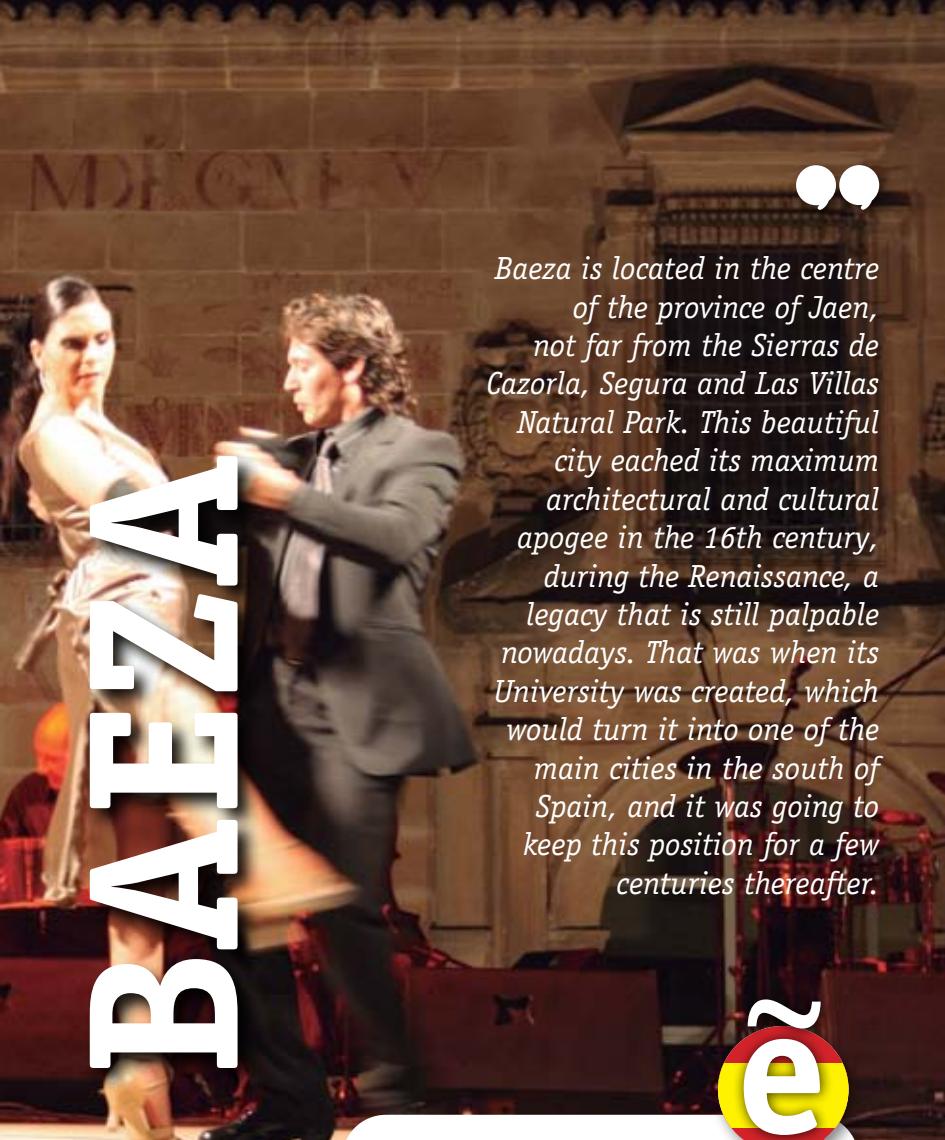

Besides running courses, the city's universities and schools offer a series of activities such as routes, guided tours, excursions, etc., to perfectly complement your classes.

Ávila's city walls, cathedral, churches, convents and monumental buildings all formed the backdrop for the mystical experiences of Saint Teresa of Jesus and St John of the Cross. The strength and intensity of their religious and literary work has made them the undeniable icons of a city in which history and the cultivation of knowledge have gone hand in hand.

Not only are we able to follow the trace of both authors in Ávila, but also of others who are more contemporary, from the 19th and 20th centuries, such as Unamuno, García Lorca, "Azorín" and Delibes, who found their inspiration in this city, dedicating to it some of the most beautiful passages in the Spanish language. The nine entrances in Avila's walls are more than just gates – they are gateways inviting travellers to cross the line between past and present in search of historic, literary and artistic adventures, which live on in its streets and buildings.

BAEZA

Baeza is located in the centre of the province of Jaén, not far from the Sierras de Cazorla, Segura and Las Villas Natural Park. This beautiful city reached its maximum architectural and cultural apogee in the 16th century, during the Renaissance, a legacy that is still palpable nowadays. That was when its University was created, which would turn it into one of the main cities in the south of Spain, and it was going to keep this position for a few centuries thereafter.

The entire city permeates its Humanist sense, the traces and memories of its main personalities, which have been kept among its age-old stones: Saint John of Ávila, Juan Huarte de San Juan, the painter Gaspar Becerra, Saint John of the Cross, Pablo de Olavide, the poet Antonio Machado or the historian Vicens Vives, among many others who were born or lived in Baeza.

Nowadays this university tradition still remains, maintained by the remarkable educational work carried out by the International University of Andalusia, with a large number of courses, post-graduate courses, etc. throughout the academic year and even more during the summer months.

Almost 1000 students go to the Antonio Machado section of the University in Baeza, to follow one of the nearly 40 courses offered and take part in the intense cultural life programmed to complement the educational aspect. Among these courses, there are those that teach Spanish to foreign students, which are consolidated and part of the annual offer. The Antonio Machado section of the International University of Andalusia has its seat in two emblematic buildings that belong to the Baeza heritage: the Jabalquinto Palace and the *Old Seminar*.

CÁCERES

Cáceres is acknowledged by the European Council as the Third most important Monumental Set in Europe and the First one in Spain. Knowing Cáceres is a must for those travellers interested in encounters among worlds and Cultures, present throughout History on one single geographical space. Cáceres is a walk through History, accompanied by the different peoples who, since Paleolithic until today, have made possible a unique architectural concentration. For that reason, it was declared World Heritage City by Unesco in 1986. Cáceres is a destination waiting to be discovered... Cáceres is waiting for you.

CÓRDOBA

Visiting and getting to know Córdoba, which has one of the biggest historic city centres in Europe, means delving into its monuments, streets, squares and hidden gems. However, Córdoba is also culture, art, fiestas, tradition, and gastronomy – in short, the opportunity to enjoy oneself in a thousand different ways throughout the year. The city's cultural calendar is chock-full of events and celebrations catering for all tastes and occasions.

The two thousand years of history that coexist in this city will provoke an avalanche of feelings. Simply crossing the Guadalquivir over the sixteen arches of the Roman Bridge, leaving behind the Calahorra Tower and then entering the city through the centuries-old gateway, is itself an experience to remember.

Córdoba is the scent of fresh geraniums and orange blossom; the taste of spices and secrets concealed behind barred windows; the sound of bells pealing and water trickling; hints of Roman, Jewish, Arabic, and Christian influences in its monuments; and warmth and silk to the touch, as depicted in the paintings of Julio Romero de Torres.

But without doubt, Córdoba's jewel, the monument that alone justifies a visit to the city, is its Cathedral-Mosque, where Punics, Carthaginians, Romans and Visigoths prayed. This spectacular structure has a storied history, standing on the site of the first, modest Jewish quarter, which the Umayyads then turned into the Great Mosque, before it was eventually converted into a Cathedral after the Reconquista.

CUENCA

Cuenca is a city for the senses. In 1996 UNESCO declared it a World Heritage City due to the magnificent preservation of its original urban environment, medieval fortress, its rich civil and religious architecture ranging from the 12th to the 18th centuries, and the exceptional fusion between the city and the beautiful natural environment it is located in.

*Capital of the Autonomous Community of Extremadura and situated right on the Silver Route, Mérida is heir to a splendid Roman past. Its Geographical location makes Mérida an important communication point as the nerve centre of an extensive territory and key for a railway and roadway connections, from north to south and from east to west.

In Mérida, travellers can discover the most magnificent Roman legacy anywhere on the Iberian Peninsula, and admire buildings and ruins from the Hispanic-Visigothic and Islamic eras as well as the Christian kingdoms from the late Middle Ages. In addition to this set of unique archaeological and monumental remains it has a unique collection of museums, whose galleries teach visitors about the emergence and evolution of a Roman province over a period of five centuries, as well as how the Visigoth kingdom was established and how the elites which cornered the emirs from Cordoba were then formed.

The city is a good example of how the subject of a still alive past is approached from the present: attending a performance in a theatre that is more than two thousand years old, soaking up the waters in a Roman spa, enjoying the view of the longest surviving Roman bridge in the world and doing so from the wall of the fortress of the first Emirate citadel established on the peninsula.

SALAMANCA

In 2005, Salamanca City Council decided to create the tourism brand "Salamanca, The City to learn Spanish" as a comprehensive project with the goal of promoting the city of Salamanca as the perfect destination to learn Spanish. To do so, it counted on the support of both the University of Salamanca and the Pontifical University as well as 16 private Spanish teaching centres accredited by the Cervantes Institute. The priority objectives are to guarantee quality and excellence in an increasingly competitive market.

www.ull.es | sioinfo@ull.es

La Laguna offers the possibility of learning and improving one's knowledge of the Spanish language in a privileged setting – culturally speaking, because it is one of the hidden jewels of the Atlantic, and linguistically speaking since the Canary archipelago lies halfway between Europe and America.

What was once Tenerife's first capital preserves close to six hundred Mudéjar-style buildings as well as its original urban layout, and stands out as a living example of the exchange of cultural influences between Europe and America.

La Laguna currently has various campuses that take in students from both the Canary archipelago and from abroad.

A host of cultural and leisure activities are on offer in La Laguna, a city with a deep-rooted university tradition, historic buildings, varied cuisine and an outstanding open-air shopping centre. Furthermore, the geographic situation of the Canaries (in subtropical Europe) means it is possible to enjoy outdoor pursuits (beach and mountain alike) all year round.

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA

Santiago de Compostela, which has flown the flag for Green Spain as a World Heritage Site since 1985 is, above all, an extraordinary cluster of monuments grouped around the tomb of St James the Apostle and the biggest Christian pilgrimage destination since the tenth century. The pilgrimage in question, the Way of St James – for which a huge variety of routes exist – was awarded World Heritage status in 1993.

An attractive and young destination for Spanish language students, the city's university – which has been declared a Campus of International Excellence – is over 500 years old. The international programmes at the University of Santiago de Compostela offer Spanish language and culture courses, as well as Spanish courses geared towards specific areas such as gastronomy, tourism, the Way of St James, business, or medicine.

Language tourism. This is a service offered by the Santiago Tourist Board which, in collaboration with the University of Santiago de Compostela – USC –, provides information about the city as a destination to study Spanish, with the added value of living with another culture and another language, Galician.

The university, one of the most famous and oldest in Spain, is reason enough to study Spanish in Santiago, especially if one keeps in mind that the rest of the Spanish teaching schools in the city share its good reputation.

Santiago is a historic, monumental, safe and fun city. It is an open museum with a vibrant cultural scene, the capital of Galicia and of the Way of St. James.

TOLEDO

Toledo, named a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 1986, has a population of 80,000 habitants and is the administrative capital of the community of Castile-La Mancha. Its historical legacy is embodied by its outstanding medieval architecture and culture, with the shadow of El Greco projected over the ochre contour of the city. Known as the City of the Three Cultures, it maintains a multicultural spirit thanks to its successful melding of the past and present-day modernity, making the city a vibrant, pleasant, up-to-date, culture-rich destination where you will immediately feel at home.

Toledo City Council is continuing in its bid to create a distinctive language tourism brand. To do so it counts with the experience of the University of Castile-La Mancha (UCLM) which, through its General Foundation, develops the Spanish Programme for Foreigners in Toledo (ESTO).

ESTO's motto "Toledo, your Spanish class" reflects the essence of what Toledo is, an old and modern, cultured and fun, natural and urban space, with a properly spoken Spanish both inside and outside of the classroom, where every corner offers an ideal moment to learn Spanish and improve your language.

For over 10 years the UCLM, which has been recognised as a Campus of International Excellence by the Spanish government, has been teaching courses in Toledo based on a flexible academic system, personalised treatment and all-round quality education.

Toledo City Council has teamed up with the regional university and signed agreements with a range of public and private organisations in order to offer perks for language students including:

Úbeda is a privileged place to learn the Spanish language. Located in the centre of the Jaén province, this is a small city with 36,000 inhabitants where the Renaissance appears as an admirable, unusual, historical fact. Learning Spanish in Úbeda will become a unique, essential experience in Spanish culture, which will have a permanent effect on those who have lived it.

Set on a crossroads, Úbeda is a communication hub between Andalusia and Levante. It is one and a half hours from Granada and Cordoba, and two and a half hours from Málaga and Seville.

The Renaissance architecture is the most noteworthy urban feature in Úbeda -at the southernmost end of the city is one of the most beautiful squares in Spain, the Plaza Vázquez de Molina square- but the city boasts other buildings in very different styles, memories of the many civilizations that have left their trace here. Its long Arabic past is still visible and present in many of the city's nooks and crannies.

This is a safe, traditional, historical city, but it is also modern and vibrant. Its people are open and social, always happy to meet new people. Its deeply rooted festivals, age-old crafts and its wise gastronomy are a confirmation that we are, indeed, in Andalusia.

A cultural reference for its province, Úbeda has a very active cultural life, with a programme that involves all sort of artistic events throughout the year: street festivals, the San Miguel fair, Renaissance festivals; music or theatre festivals, bullfighting... entertainment is guaranteed the whole year round.
